[3] Learned advocate appearing for the appellant has submitted that the appellant is an innocent person and on bare reading of the FIR, no prima facie case is made out against the appellant, and there is nothing on record to show that the present appellant has committed the alleged offence. It is further submitted that no CCTV footage were collected or recovered by the investigating agency, and the complainant himself is a strong head person having criminal antecedents. Learned advocate for the appellant submits that the FIR is registered after a delay of almost four months, and therefore considering the nature of allegations, role attributed to the

[4] Learned Additional Public Prosecutor appearing on behalf of the respondent No.1-State has opposed grant of anticipatory bail looking to the nature and gravity of the offence.

[5] Heard the learned Advocates for the respective parties and perused the papers specifically the statement of one witness Mr. Bharatbhai. From bare perusal, the statement of independent witness does not disclose that any untoward words were spoken by the present appellant.

[6] Having heard the learned advocate appearing for the parties and perused the record of the case and taking into consideration the facts of the case, nature of allegations, role attributed to the accused, without discussing the evidence in detail, at this stage, I am inclined to grant anticipatory bail to the appellant.
